I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff is a state prisoner who is currently incarcerated at the Kern Valley State Prison in Delano, California. He proceeds pro se and in forma pauperis (“IFP”) in this 42 U.S.C. § 1983 civil rights action. Plaintiff alleges that the two remaining defendants in this case, correctional officers Sweeten and Barron, violated plaintiff’s First Amendment rights by soliciting inmates at the High Desert State Prison (“HDSP”) to harm plaintiff in retaliation for his litigation and grievance activity, and violated plaintiff’s Eighth Amendment rights by housing him in the same cell as gang-affiliated inmates, as well as soliciting several of plaintiff’s cellmates to physically harm him.¹ (See Docket 195 at 3.) Now pending before the

¹ Aside from the claims against defendants Sweeten and Barron, all of plaintiff’s claims were denied by the Court prior to referral of this action to the undersigned. (See Dkts. 78, 99, 138, 152, 175, 182, 192, 194, 214, and 216.) There is also a Report and Recommendation dated April 13, 2010, from the previous magistrate judge pending in this case. (See Dkt. 238.)

01 Court are defendants' motion to dismiss on the grounds that plaintiff does not qualify for IFP
02 status, and motion for summary judgment. (See Dkts. 230 and 232.) Plaintiff has filed 03 opposition to defendants' motions, and defendants have filed a reply to plaintiff's opposition.
04 (See Dkts. 234, 235, and 239.) For the reasons set forth below, the Court recommends 05 DENYING defendants' motion to dismiss on IFP status, GRANTING defendants' motion for 06 summary judgment on the merits, and DISMISSING this case with prejudice.

07 II. BACKGROUND

08 A. Procedural History

09 Plaintiff commenced this action in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of 10 California in 2002, but the case was transferred to this Court on April 2, 2004. (See Dkt. 1.) 11 By Order dated November 19, 2004, this Court dismissed plaintiff's initial complaint because 12 plaintiff admitted that he had, on three or more prior occasions, brought an action in a court of 13 the United States that had been dismissed as frivolous, malicious, or failed to state a claim 14 upon which relief could be granted. (See Dkt. 9.) In other words, plaintiff admitted that he 15 had "struck out" within the meaning of the "three strikes" provision of the Prisoner Litigation 16 Reform Act ("PLRA"). See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). The Court, however, also noted that several 17 claims in plaintiff's complaint appeared to allege "imminent danger of serious physical 18 injury," which could trigger an exception to the "three strikes" provision that would allow 19 plaintiff to proceed IFP notwithstanding the fact that he had previously "struck out." See id.
20 The Court gave plaintiff leave to amend his complaint, and deferred resolution of plaintiff's 21 request to proceed IFP until an amended complaint was filed. (See Dkt. 9.) 22

01 Plaintiff filed his first amended complaint on December 13, 2004. (See Dkt. 14.)
02 Because the Court found that portions of the first amended complaint satisfied the “imminent 03 danger” exception to the PLRA’s “three strikes” provision, and also stated a cognizable claim 04 for relief under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and 28 U.S.C. § 1915A, the Court granted plaintiff leave to 05 proceed IFP in this action. (See Dkt. 21 at 1-2.) The Court then ordered service of the first 06 amended complaint on three named defendants, members of the HDSP medical staff who 07 plaintiff alleged violated his Eighth Amendment rights. (See id. at 2.) Although the Court 08 subsequently granted the motions of those three defendants for summary judgment, the Court
09 also gave plaintiff leave to file a second amended complaint because “it appears that Plaintiff 10 may plead sufficient facts upon which relief may be granted against defendants Sweeten and 11 Barron.” (Dkt. 182 at 3; see Dkt. 152.)

12 Plaintiff filed his second amended complaint on April 3, 2008. (See Dkt. 187.) Due to 13 plaintiff’s persistent disregard of the Court’s admonishments regarding plaintiff’s excessive 14 filings, however, the Court dismissed the complaint on September 5, 2008. (See Dkts. 192 15 and 194.) Plaintiff was granted leave to file a third amended complaint that complied with the 16 twenty-five page limit, as well as other requirements set forth by the Court. (See Dkt. 194.)
17 On September 22, 2008, plaintiff filed his third amended complaint alleging violations of his 18 constitutional rights under the First and Eighth Amendments by defendants Sweeten and 19 Barron. (See Dkt. 195.)

20 By Order dated February 3, 2009, the Court found that the complaint stated cognizable
21 claims for relief, and ordered service on both defendants. (See Dkts. 196 and 198.) 22 Defendants filed an answer denying plaintiff’s claims on May 18, 2009. (See Dkt. 201.) As 01 mentioned above, currently before this Court are defendants' motion to dismiss this action on 02 the grounds that plaintiff does not qualify for IFP status, and defendants' motion for summary

03 judgment on the merits. (See Dkts. 230 and 232.)

04 B. Contentions of the Parties

05 This case proceeds on plaintiff's Third Amended Complaint, which sets forth claims 06 arising from incidents plaintiff alleges took place in 2003 and 2004 during his incarceration at 07 HDSP. (See Dkt. 195 at 3.) Although plaintiff does not specifically state which constitutional 08 rights were violated, plaintiff's claims appear to arise from the First and Eighth Amendments 09 to the U.S. Constitution. Specifically, plaintiff claims that defendants (1) violated his First 10 Amendment rights by soliciting other inmates to physically assault him or steal from him in 11 retaliation for plaintiff's litigation and grievance activity against correctional and medical 12 staff at HDSP, (2) violated his Eighth Amendment rights by housing plaintiff in a cell with 13 gang-affiliated inmates, thereby disregarding an excessive risk to plaintiff's health and safety; 14 and (3) violated his Eighth Amendment rights by soliciting inmates to physically harm him, 15 because he alleges one inmate assaulted him at defendants' urging. (See id.; Dkt. 234 at 2-3.)

16 Defendants contend that plaintiff is a vexatious litigant whose IFP status should be 17 revoked pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), and that this case should therefore be dismissed.
18 (See Dkt. 230.) Alternatively, defendants assert that they are entitled to summary judgment 19 on the claims set forth in plaintiff's Third Amended Complaint because plaintiff has not 20 established a genuine issue of material fact for trial, and in any event, they are entitled to 21 qualified immunity. (See Dkts. 232 and 239.)

01 C. Undisputed Facts

02 The following facts, which were primarily set forth by properly signed declarations 03 provided by defendants, remain uncontroverted by plaintiff.

04 In 2003 and 2004, plaintiff was housed in HDSP Facility B, Building 1, where 05 defendants worked as correctional floor officers and were responsible for supervising inmate 06 activities, assisting with determining inmate housing assignments, and ensuring the safety and 07 security of inmates, officers, and staff within the building. (See Dkt. 232, Sweeten 08 Declaration; Barron Decl.) Correctional staff at HDSP completed an initial housing review 09 form for plaintiff on June 5, 2001, which indicated that plaintiff had a “Gang/Disruptive 10 Group Affiliation” with the Crips at that time.² (See id., Ex. B; Barron Decl.; Vervoort Decl.)

11 Custody staff at HDSP attempt to house compatible inmates with each other, which 12 frequently includes housing inmates affiliated with the same gang in a cell together if 13 possible, as well as housing non-affiliated inmates in a cell together. (See id., Sweeten Decl.; 14 Barron Decl.) Sometimes institutional need, such as lack of available bed space, may require 15 gang-affiliated inmates to be housed with non-affiliated inmates. (See id.) When an inmate 16 requests a cell move due to lack of compatibility with a cellmate, custody staff completes the 17 cell move once bed space becomes available. (See id.) Upon receipt of an inmate’s request 18 for a new cellmate, custody staff will first ask the inmates to find other compatible cellmates
19 within the building. (See id.) If an inmate does not identify a compatible cellmate, custody
20 staff will attempt to identify one and complete the cell move as soon as possible. (See id.)

² Plaintiff asserts that he “has never been a Crip,” and provides evidence that by December 2005, HDSP and the Kern Valley State Prison both recognized him as a non-affiliated inmate. (See Dkt. 234 at 2; id. Ex. A; Dkt. 233, Ellington Deposition at 52.)

01 While plaintiff lived at HDSP, plaintiff shared his cell without incident with several 02 Crip-affiliated inmates, including Alton Allen, Anthony Goodman, and Eugene Jones, as well 03 as several unaffiliated inmates, including Antoine Thompson and Isaiah Williams. (See Dkt.
 04 232, Defendant's Statement of Undisputed Facts ("DSUF") at 3-4; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 05 71-72, 82-91.) He was also on friendly terms with several Crip-affiliated inmates living in the 06 building, including Phillip Joseph and Charles Norwood. (See Dkt. 232, DSUF at 3; Dkt.
 07 233, Ellington Dep. at 73-78.) Although plaintiff or his current cellmate at HDSP requested a 08 cell move due to incompatibility on several occasions, on every occasion the cell move was 09 completed before any kind of physical altercation or disturbance took place. (See Dkt. 232, 10 DSUF at 4.) For example, when plaintiff requested a cell move from Crip-affiliated inmate 11 Jones based upon incompatibility, correctional staff completed the move within two weeks, 12 even though plaintiff and Jones failed to identify any potentially compatible cellmates for 13 correctional staff. (See id., Ex. E; Sweeten Decl; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 87-89.)

14 The only inmate at HDSP with whom plaintiff had a physical altercation in 2003 or 15 2004 was Savon Dennis, a Crip-affiliated inmate.³ (See Dkt. 232, Ex. C; Dkt. 233, Ellington 16 Dep. at 91.) Specifically, when defendant Sweeten inspected plaintiff's cell on August 9, 17 2003, he found that plaintiff and Dennis had both sustained physical injuries, and concluded
 18 they had engaged in a physical altercation.⁴ (See Dkt. 232, Sweeten Decl.; id., Ex. C.)

20 ³ Whereas defendants characterize plaintiff's altercation with Dennis as mutual in nature, 21 plaintiff maintains that "Mr. Dennis assaulted me. I didn't get into a fight with him." (Dkt. 233, 22 Ellington Dep. at 91; see also Dkt. 232 at 4-5.) Thus, this fact is in dispute.

⁴ The parties also dispute the time of day that Sweeten responded to the incident in plaintiff's cell. While Sweeten reported that he inspected the cell at approximately 11 a.m., plaintiff argues that Sweeten actually "saw the blood was on me, he saw that my mouth had been busted" as early as 9-9:30 a.m., but did not respond or report the incident until hours later. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 91-100.)

01 Plaintiff had blood on his pants and bottom lip, and Dennis had sustained small cuts on his 02 left finger and left thumb. (See id.) Because Sweeten reported that he could not identify the 03 aggressor, both inmates were issued a rules violation report for engaging in mutual combat.
 04 (See id., Exs. C and F.) Immediately following plaintiff's altercation with Dennis, 05 correctional staff moved Dennis out of plaintiff's cell. (See id., Sweeten Decl.; Ellington Dep.
 06 at 100.) Plaintiff does not allege that he had requested a cell move prior to this incident.

07 D. Disputed Facts

08 The parties disagree regarding whether defendants asked or encouraged several Crip-09 affiliated inmates, including Goodman, Jones, and Dennis, to physically assault, harm, or steal 10 from plaintiff, whether in retaliation for plaintiff's litigation and grievance history or for any 11 other reason. (See Dkt. 195; Dkt. 232, DSUF at 1-4; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep.) As discussed 12 in more detail below, plaintiff's evidence to support his contention that defendants solicited 13 inmates at HDSP to harm him consists of two unsigned and unsworn declarations purportedly 14 dictated by inmates Goodman and Jones.⁵ (See Dkt. 195, Ex. A and B.) Specifically, 15 Goodman's declaration states that when he requested a cell transfer from plaintiff in 2003, 16 Sweeten replied, "Why don't you do us a favor and go in there and beat the shit out of 17 Ellington we've got that ass on video tape in the Central Treatment Center (CTC) dancing."
 18 (Id., Ex. A.) Similarly, Jones' declaration provides that when he asked Sweeten about a cell 19 move in 2004, Sweeten responded, "Upon the cell move being submitted BEAT HIS ASS 20 (Ellington). We don't give a damn about him. Then we'll move you." (Id., Ex. B.) Jones' 21 declaration also states that Barron told him, "You know what you've got to do to get a cell

22 ⁵ For the reasons discussed infra, these two declarations are not competent evidence for purposes of defendants' motion for summary judgment. Their contents are recited here only as a statement of plaintiff's allegations.

01 move.’ Which [Jones] perceived as an invite to fight Ellington.” (Id.) Although plaintiff also 02 claims that at the time of the incident with Dennis, “[h]e told me that Sweeten had told him to 03 slug me in the mouth . . . because I was a – a pedophile,” plaintiff has failed to provide any 04 evidence (such as a declaration from Dennis, or any other inmate at HDSP) to support his 05 assertion that Dennis assaulted plaintiff at defendants’ behest. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 06 91-92.)

07 Furthermore, in this action the parties dispute whether defendants possessed any 08 knowledge of plaintiff’s commitment offense, litigation or administrative grievance history
09 (aside from one grievance plaintiff filed in 2004 requesting a cell move from Jones), or gang
10 affiliation status. They also dispute whether housing plaintiff in the same cell as Crip-11 affiliated inmates at HDSP presented a substantial risk of harm to plaintiff of which 12 defendants were aware. (See Dkt. 232, DSUF at 4-5; Sweeten Decl.; Barron Decl.; Dkt. 233, 13 Ellington Dep. at 92-93.)

14 III. DISCUSSION

15 A. Defendants’ Motion to Revoke Plaintiff’s IFP Status and Dismiss the Case

16 A prisoner may not proceed IFP in a civil action if he has, on three or more prior 17 occasions, brought civil actions that were dismissed as frivolous, malicious, or for failure to 18 state a claim upon which relief may be granted. See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). An exception to 19 this general rule applies if a prisoner alleges that he is “under imminent danger of serious 20 physical injury.” Id. In this case, it is undisputed that plaintiff has “struck out” as a vexatious 21 litigant under the PLRA, and therefore cannot proceed IFP unless he satisfies the “imminent 22 danger” exception of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). (See Dkts. 1, 9, 14, 21, 235, and 239.) When this

01 Court considered plaintiff's request to proceed IFP in this action, however, it found that 02 plaintiff's claims, as set forth in the first amended complaint, sufficiently alleged that he was 03 "under imminent danger of serious physical injury" to satisfy the exception. (See Dkt. 21 at 04 1-2.)

05 In their "Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint (Vexatious Litigant Motion)," 06 defendants argue that plaintiff's case should nevertheless be dismissed because he "was not in 07 imminent danger of serious physical injury when he filed his Third Amended Complaint."
08 (Dkt. 230, Memorandum of Points and Authorities at 6.) Specifically, "[b]y the time he filed 09 this complaint, Ellington was an inmate at California Substance Abuse Treatment Facility and 10 State Prison in Corcoran, California - 454 miles away from High Desert State Prison, where 11 Sweeten and Barron allegedly solicited other inmates to harm him." (Id.) As a result, 12 defendants ask this Court to revoke plaintiff's IFP status pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), 13 dismiss this case, and require plaintiff to immediately pay all filing fees before refileing this 14 matter. (See id.) In response, plaintiff argues that he did not need to demonstrate imminent 15 danger at the time he filed his third amended complaint because he had already made such a 16 showing in his first amended complaint, when the Court granted his request to proceed IFP in 17 this action. (See Dkt. 235 at 2.) The question before this Court is therefore whether 18 plaintiff's IFP status can and should be revoked if he could no longer satisfy the "imminent 19 danger" exception at the time he filed his third amended complaint.

20 Based upon this Court's review of the record and relevant case law, defendants' 21 contentions appear to be based upon a misunderstanding of the Ninth Circuit's holding in 22 Andrews v. Cervantes, 493 F.3d 1047, 1053 (9th Cir. 2007). Specifically, the Andrews court

01 held that “the availability of the [imminent danger] exception turns on the conditions a 02 prisoner faced at the time the complaint was filed, not at some earlier or later time.” Andrews, 03 493 F.3d at 1053 (emphasis added). Although the Andrews court did not expressly 04 distinguish between the time when an “initial” versus an “amended” complaint is filed, the 05 court indicated that the relevant time to determine whether an inmate satisfies the “imminent 06 danger” exception to the three strikes rule is at the beginning of an action or lawsuit. For 07 example, the Andrews court emphasized that 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g) is only concerned with the 08 “initial act” of bringing an “action,” which “refers to a case as a whole rather than just its 09 individual claims”:

10 The PLRA provides that a prisoner with three strikes cannot use 11 IFP status to “bring a civil action . . . unless the prisoner is 12 under imminent danger of serious physical injury.” 28 U.S.C.
 13 § 1915(g) (emphasis added). The exception’s use of the present 14 tense, combined with its concern only with the initial act of “bring[ing]” the lawsuit, indicates to us that the exception applies if the danger existed at the time the prisoner filed the complaint.

15 Id. at 1052-54.⁶ Furthermore, the court observed that “the three-strikes rule is a screening 16 device” to help determine whether an action may proceed without prepayment of the filing fee 17 “based upon the allegations appearing on the face of the complaint.” Id. at 1050.

18 Similarly, this Court, applying the Ninth Circuit’s decision in Andrews, has recognized 19 that “§ 1915(g) addresses the time a prisoner brings an action,” and not simply any time a 20 complaint is filed. Andrews v. Cervantes, 2008 WL 1970345, *1 (E.D. Cal. 2008) (emphasis

21 ⁶ Moreover, the Andrews court held that even if several claims in a complaint do not allege an 22 imminent danger of serious physical injury, if some of the claims do meet the requisite standard, the prisoner has satisfied the “imminent danger” exception and qualifies for IFP status. See id. at 1054.
 “[O]nce a prisoner satisfies the exception . . . the district court must docket the entire complaint and resolve all of its claims, without requiring the upfront payment of the filing fee.” Id. at 1053-54.

01 added) (citing Andrews, 493 F.3d at 1053). Specifically, this Court held that “despite the 02 passage of time and plaintiff’s transfer away from the California prison system . . . at the time 03 he brought this action, he was in ‘imminent danger of serious physical harm,’” and therefore 04 plaintiff could proceed IFP with an amended complaint. Id. As a result, “neither the passage 05 of time nor the transfer of a prisoner to a different facility has any impact on the determination 06 of whether the [imminent danger] exception to the rule applies” in a given case. Id. See also 07 Jensen v. Knowles, 2008 WL 744726 (E.D. Cal. 2008) (denying defendants’ motion for 08 revocation of plaintiff’s IFP status and dismissal of the action because although plaintiff “was 09 no longer incarcerated at [the prison] where the alleged conduct had been occurred,” plaintiff 10 had “satisfied the imminent danger exception at the time the initial complaint was filed.”).
11 Moreover, the case cited by defendants in support of their argument did not decide, as 12 defendants suggest, that this Court must look only to the “operative complaint for the case.” 13 (Dkt. 239 at 3.) See Wilson v. Hubbard, 2009 WL 2971619 (E.D. Cal. 2009) (holding that 14 plaintiff did not suffer “an imminent threat of serious physical injury at the time he filed this 15 action” because plaintiff was clearly under no imminent danger at the time plaintiff filed his 16 original complaint, his first amended complaint, or “the operative complaint, i.e. the second 17 amended complaint. . .”).

18 Thus, case law does not support defendants’ argument that this Court must re-evaluate 19 plaintiff’s IFP status at this juncture, simply because plaintiff has filed a third amended 20 complaint in this action. As discussed above, this Court properly considered whether plaintiff 21 was under imminent danger of serious physical injury at the time he brought this action, and 22 “not at some earlier or later time,” in accordance with the Ninth Circuit’s decision in 01 Andrews. Specifically, when this Court found that allegations appearing on the face of the 02 initial complaint might satisfy the “imminent danger” exception, it expressly deferred 03 consideration of plaintiff’s request to proceed IFP. (See Dkt. 9.) The Court subsequently 04 found that plaintiff’s first amended complaint (which set forth plaintiff’s claims regarding 05 Sweeten and Barron, among other defendants) satisfied the exception, and granted plaintiff’s 06 request to proceed IFP in this action. (See Dkt. 21 at 1-2.) The fact that plaintiff was 07 subsequently transferred to a different prison is irrelevant.

08 Accordingly, defendants’ request for this Court to revoke plaintiff’s IFP status 09 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g) and dismiss this case is DENIED. Plaintiff remains 10 obligated to pay the $150.00 statutory filing fee in monthly payments, which shall be 11 collected and paid in accordance with this Court’s Order For Payment of Inmate Filing Fee
12 dated May 17, 2005. (See Dkt. 22.)

13 B. Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment

14 Defendants also move this Court for summary judgment as to plaintiff’s claims that 15 defendants (1) violated plaintiff’s First Amendment rights by soliciting several Crip-affiliated 16 inmates to physically harm or steal from plaintiff in retaliation for his litigation and 17 grievances against custody and medical staff in the HDSP, (2) violated plaintiff’s Eighth 18 Amendment rights by housing plaintiff in a cell with Crip-affiliated inmates, thereby 19 disregarding an excessive risk to plaintiff’s health and safety, and (3) violated plaintiff’s 20 Eighth Amendment rights by soliciting several Crip-affiliated inmates to physically harm 21 plaintiff, because plaintiff alleges that Dennis assaulted him at defendants’ behest. (See Dkt.
22 195 at 3; Dkt. 232.)

01 Summary judgment is appropriate when, viewing the facts in the light most favorable 02 to the nonmoving party, the records show that “there is no genuine issue as to any material 03 fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c).
04 The Court draws all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party. United States v.
05 Johnson Controls, Inc., 457 F.3d 1009, 1013 (9th Cir. 2006). The moving party can carry its 06 initial burden by producing affirmative evidence that negates an essential element of the 07 nonmovant’s case, or by establishing that the nonmovant lacks the quantum of evidence 08 needed to satisfy his burden of persuasion at trial. Nissan Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Fritz
09 Cos., 210 F.3d 1099, 1106 (9th Cir. 2000). Once the moving party has satisfied its burden, it 10 is entitled to summary judgment if the non-moving party fails to designate, by affidavits, 11 depositions, answers to interrogatories, or admissions on file, “specific facts showing that 12 there is a genuine issue for trial.” Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 324 (1986). “The 13 mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the non-moving party’s position is not 14 sufficient.” Triton Energy Corp. v. Square D Co., 68 F.3d 1216, 1221 (9th Cir. 1995).
15 “[S]ummary judgment should be granted where the nonmoving party fails to offer evidence 16 from which a reasonable jury could return a verdict in its favor.” Id. at 1221.

17 In addition, to sustain a cause of action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, a plaintiff must show 18 (i) that he suffered a violation of rights protected by the Constitution or created by federal 19 statute, and (ii) that the violation was proximately caused by a person acting under color of 20 state law. See Crumpton v. Gates, 947 F.2d 1418, 1420 (9th Cir. 1991). The causation 21 requirement of § 1983 is satisfied only if a plaintiff demonstrates that a defendant did “ ‘an 22 affirmative act, participates in another’s affirmative acts, or omits to perform an act which 01 [that person] is legally required to do that causes the deprivation of which complaint is 02 made.” Hydrick v. Hunter, 500 F.3d 978, 988 (9th Cir. 2007) (quoting Johnson v. Duffy, 588 03 F.2d 740, 743 (9th Cir. 1978). “[T]he ‘requisite causal connection can be established not only 04 by some kind of direct personal participation in the deprivation, but also by setting in motion 05 a series of acts by others which the actor knows or reasonably should know would cause 06 others to inflict the constitutional injury.’” Id. (quoting Johnson, 588 F.2d at 743-44).

07 1. Plaintiff’s Unsigned and Unsworn Declarations from Goodman and Jones

08 As mentioned above, plaintiff’s primary evidence to support his First and Eighth 09 Amendment claims in this case consist of declarations from two former cellmates of plaintiff, 10 Goodman and Jones. (See Dkt. 195, Ex. A and B.) These two declarations constitute the only 11 evidence proffered by the plaintiff, aside from his own testimony, that defendants solicited or 12 encouraged any inmates at HDSP to physically harm or steal from plaintiff, and are therefore 13 critical to each of plaintiff’s claims set forth in his Third Amended Complaint. (See Dkt. 195 14 at 3-4.) For example, plaintiff failed to provide any evidence to support his assertion that 15 Dennis, the only prisoner at HDSP who plaintiff alleges actually harmed him, did so at 16 defendants’ behest, because Dennis “didn’t write [a declaration] for me.” (Dkt. 233, Ellington 17 Dep. at 92.)

18 Given the importance of the evidence from Goodman and Jones, the fact that these 19 two prisoners’ declarations contain only typed signatures is fatal to plaintiff’s case, because 20 the declarations have no evidentiary value. See 28 U.S.C. § 1746 (providing that unsworn 21 declarations may be regarded “with like force and effect” as sworn declarations, if they are 22 subscribed with the declarant’s signature as true under penalty of perjury). Specifically,

01 Goodman's declaration was not executed with Goodman's signature, accompanied by an 02 assertion that Goodman made the statements contained therein under oath, or accompanied by 03 a statement that Goodman signed the declaration under penalty of perjury. (See id., Ex. A.)
04 Similarly, although the unsworn declaration from Jones contains an assertion that Jones made 05 the statements contained therein under penalty of perjury, it was not executed with Jones'
06 signature. (See id., Ex. B.)

07 Indeed, there is no evidence in this case, aside from plaintiff's self-serving testimony, 08 that either Goodman or Jones even saw these two declarations, or made the statements 09 contained therein. See Villiarimo v. Aloha Island Air, Inc., 281 F.3d 1054, 1061 (9th Cir.
10 2002) ("[T]his court has refused to find a 'genuine issue' where the only evidence presented is 11 'uncorroborated and self-serving' testimony. . . .") Plaintiff admits that he typed up both 12 declarations himself, but asserts the inmates verbally "sign[ed] on" to what plaintiff had 13 typed. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 89.) Specifically, plaintiff was asked during his 14 deposition if he possessed "a signed copy of [Jones'] declaration," because the one attached to 15 plaintiff's Third Amended Complaint "looks like his declaration was typed up for him and his 16 name is typed in." (Id.) Plaintiff responded, "[T]hat's the only one that I have in my 17 possession . . . He dictated that to me as I typed." (Id.) Similarly, plaintiff acknowledged that 18 Goodman had told plaintiff about the incident described in his declaration, and that "his name 19 [was] typed" on the signature line at the bottom. (Id. at 84.)

20 Moreover, plaintiff was specifically advised on at least two occasions, pursuant to this 21 Court's Orders dated December 8, 2005, and March 11, 2009, that any motions or opposition 22 supported by unsigned affidavits or declarations in this case would be stricken. (See Dkt. 56 01 at 5; Dkt. 198 at 5.) Plaintiff has been provided numerous opportunities in this action to 02 amend his complaints to cure any defects, and support his allegations against defendants.

03 (See Dkts. 182, 187, 192, and 194.) Because plaintiff has failed to comply with this Court's 04 admonishments and directions throughout this action, he has also been advised that failure to 05 do so may result in the imposition of sanctions, or dismissal of this action with prejudice.
06 (See Dkt. 194.) Under these circumstances, it is inappropriate to provide plaintiff with yet 07 another opportunity to attempt to cure the defects in his complaint.

08 With these two declarations stricken from the record, plaintiff has not provided any 09 evidence to support his claim that defendants solicited inmates at HDSP to harm him. See 10 Crumpton, 947 F.2d at 1420 (providing that § 1983 requires a plaintiff to show a federal 11 deprivation proximately caused by a state actor). This is a wholly sufficient basis to grant 12 defendants' motion for summary judgment as to plaintiff's First and Eighth Amendment 13 claims. Because plaintiff's claims against defendants have risen, like a phoenix, from the 14 ashes on several occasions since plaintiff commenced this action in 2002, however, the Court 15 will also address the merits of plaintiff's claims in the interests of completeness. As discussed 16 below, defendants are entitled to summary judgment on the merits even assuming arguendo
17 that plaintiff could cure the defects in the declarations from Goodman and Jones, if provided 18 yet another opportunity to do so.

19 2. Plaintiff's First Amendment Retaliation Claim

20 In his Third Amended Complaint, plaintiff asserts that defendants retaliated against 21 him because of (1) plaintiff's commitment offense of rape, (2) defendants' belief that plaintiff 22 was a child molester, (3) defendants' belief that plaintiff was a "snitch," and (4) "due to his

01 writing-up of custodial and medical staff” at HDSP in the past. (Dkt. 195 at 3.)

02 As a threshold matter, however, retaliation claims must allege that plaintiff was 03 engaging in a protected activity under the First Amendment and the state impermissibly 04 infringed on the plaintiff’s right to engage in that activity. See Rizzo v. Dawson, 778 F.2d 05 527, 532 (9th Cir. 1985). As a result, plaintiff’s assertions that defendants retaliated against 06 him because they believed plaintiff was a rapist or child molester fail to state a claim for 07 retaliation. Moreover, in this case plaintiff has not provided any evidence, such as affidavits 08 or declarations from inmates, which contradict defendants’ assertions in their declarations that 09 “while Ellington lived in [HDSP], I was not aware of his commitment offense, or of any 10 charges he received,” and “never called Ellington a child molester or a snitch . . . [or] accused 11 him of any crime.” (Dkt. 232, Sweeten Decl; Barron Decl.; see Dkts. 195 and 234.) Without 12 more than the bare assertion that defendants retaliated against plaintiff because they believed 13 plaintiff was a rapist, child molester, and “snitch,” plaintiff has failed to present a genuine 14 issue of material fact for trial. See Rizzo, 778 F.2d at 532 n.4 (“[B]are allegations of arbitrary 15 retaliation are [not] enough . . . to avoid dismissal.”). Thus, this Court proceeds to plaintiff’s 16 argument that defendants retaliated against him “due to his writing-up of custodial and 17 medical staff,” which properly states a claim for relief under the First Amendment.

18 Plaintiff contends that defendants solicited several Crip-affiliated inmates who were 19 living with plaintiff, including Goodman, Jones, and Dennis, to harm him in retaliation for 20 plaintiff’s lawsuits and grievances filed against staff at HDSP. (See Dkt. 195 at 3.) In 21 particular, plaintiff claims that defendants sought to harm him because he was “a litigator,” 22 and because of a lawsuit plaintiff had filed against “something like 76 officers and medical 01 staff” of HDSP in 1999. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 40-41, 120-122.) Plaintiff admits that 02 Goodman and Jones declined to harm him, but claims that Dennis did physically assault him

03 at the defendants’ behest. (See id. at 92-93, 119.)

04 Although plaintiff’s complaint also contends that defendants solicited inmates to steal 05 from him, with the exception of inmate Dennis (who plaintiff asserts packed several of 06 plaintiff’s personal items - such as food items, tobacco, and deodorant – when he moved out 07 of their shared cell), plaintiff has not identified any individuals who stole from him at HDSP 08 or any stolen items. Plaintiff states that he is “pretty sure” inmates at HDSP stole from him, 09 although “who it was and when it happened, I can’t say.” (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 105.)
10 Plaintiff also admits that he did not file any administrative grievances concerning stolen items 11 at HDSP. (See id. at 103-09.) Because there is no evidence in the record of any theft 12 committed against plaintiff at HDSP, by Dennis or anyone else, this Court limits its analysis 13 to plaintiff’s allegation that the defendants solicited inmates to physically harm him, as 14 alleged in the declarations from Goodman and Jones. (See Dkt. 195 at 3.)

15 Prisoners have protected “First Amendment rights to file prison grievances and to 16 pursue civil rights litigation in the courts.” Rhodes v. Robinson, 408 F.3d 559, 567 (9th Cir.
17 2005). In order for a prisoner to prevail on a claim of First Amendment retaliation under 18 § 1983, a plaintiff must establish five elements: “(1) An assertion that a state actor took some 19 adverse action against an inmate (2) because of (3) that prisoner’s protected conduct, and that 20 such action (4) chilled the inmate’s exercise of his First Amendment rights, and (5) the action 21 did not reasonably advance a legitimate correctional goal,” such as preserving institutional 22 order and discipline. Id. at 567-68. See also Resnick v. Hayes, 213 F.3d 443, 449 (9th Cir.

2000); Barnett v. Centoni, 31 F.3d 813, 816 (9th Cir. 1994).

Thus, in each case, a plaintiff asserting a retaliation claim must show that the defendants were “actually aware” of his protected speech, and establish a “but-for” causal nexus between the alleged retaliation and protected speech. Pratt v. Rowand, 65 F.3d 802, 809 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding that the plaintiff bears the burden of pleading and proving retaliatory motive). A plaintiff must submit evidence, either direct or circumstantial, to establish this causal link. See id. at 806; McDonald v. Campbell, 2010 WL 1328696 (E.D. Cal. 2010) (“The prisoner must submit evidence demonstrating a link between the exercise of his constitutional rights and the defendant’s allegedly retaliatory action.”). In this context, a plaintiff can generally raise a genuine issue of material fact regarding retaliatory motive by “produc[ing], in addition to evidence that the defendant knew of the protected speech, at least (1) evidence of proximity in time between the protected speech and the allegedly retaliatory decision, (2) evidence that the defendant expressed opposition to the speech, or (3) evidence that the defendant’s proffered reason for the adverse action was false or pretextual.” Pinard v. Clatskanie School Dist., 467 F.3d 755, 771 n.21 (9th Cir. 2006) (citing Keyser v. Sacramento City Unif. Sch. Dist., 265 F.3d 741, 751-52 (9th Cir. 2001)).

In this case, plaintiff has proffered evidence to support only four of the five elements of his retaliation claim. First, if the declarations of Goodman and Jones are presumed to be authentic, they support plaintiff’s claim that defendants took adverse action against him. (See Dkt. 195, Exs. A and B.) Adverse action is action that “would chill a person of ordinary firmness” from engaging in that activity. Pinard v. Clatskanie School Dist., 467 F.3d 755, 770 (9th Cir. 2006). In the prison context, the action taken must be clearly adverse to the 01 plaintiff. See e.g., Rhodes, 408 F.3d at 568 (arbitrary confiscation and destruction of property, 02 initiation of a prison transfer, and assault in retaliation for filing grievances); Austin v.

 03 Terhune, 367 F.3d 1167, 1171 (9th Cir. 2004) (retaliatory placement in administrative 04 segregation for filing grievances); Pratt, 65 F.3d at 806 (retaliatory prison transfer and 05 double-cell status in retaliation). Although Goodman and Jones never physically harmed 06 plaintiff, their declarations assert that defendants encouraged or solicited them to do so. (See 07 Dkt. 195, Exs. A and B.) Assuming the declarations are correct, the Court finds that 08 defendants' solicitation of physical harm to plaintiff at the hands of other inmates was 09 sufficient to constitute adverse action under § 1983, even if defendants' instructions were 10 never carried out.⁷ See Valandingham v. Bojorquez, 866 F.2d 1135, 1139 (9th Cir. 1989) 11 (holding that plaintiff's claim that prison officials retaliated against him for his grievance 12 activities by labeling him a "snitch," where plaintiff's claim was also supported by numerous 13 inmate affidavits confirming that defendants had called plaintiff a "snitch" in front of other 14 inmates with the intention of having plaintiff harmed or killed, presented a genuine issue of 15 material fact for trial).

16 In addition to proffering evidence of defendants' adverse action, plaintiff can likely 17 support three other prongs of his retaliation claim. Specifically, the parties do not appear to 18 dispute the fact that plaintiff engaged in speech activities protected by the First Amendment 19 during the course of his incarceration at HDSP by filing numerous lawsuits and grievances.
 20 (See Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 10-11, 58, 105-06; Dkts. 232 and 239.) See also Rhodes, 408

21 ⁷ Plaintiff admits that aside from his physical altercation with Dennis, no other cellmate at 22 HDSP actually harmed him. (See Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 103.) Although plaintiff alleges that Dennis harmed him at defendants' direction "because I was a – a pedophile," there is no evidence in the record to support this claim. (Id. at 92.) Plaintiff did not file a declaration from Dennis to support this allegation.

01 F.3d at 567 (“Of fundamental import to prisoners are their First Amendment right[s] to file 02 prison grievances . . . [and to] pursue civil rights litigation in the courts.”). Moreover, 03 although it might have required something more to chill this plaintiff’s litigation activities, “a 04 person of ordinary firmness” would have suffered a “chilling effect” on his speech due to 05 defendants’ actions this case. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 43.) See also Rhodes, 408 F.3d at 06 569 (holding that a plaintiff need not demonstrate that his speech was “actually inhibited or 07 suppressed,” if defendant’s actions “would chill or silence a person of ordinary firmness from 08 future First Amendment activities.”). Finally, defendants’ actions were not justified by any 09 legitimate penological objective. See Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 833 (1994) (“Prison 10 conditions may be restrictive and even harsh . . . but gratuitously allowing the beating or rape 11 of one prisoner by another serve no ‘legitimate penological objectiv[e].’”).

12 The weakness in plaintiff’s case is that he has not presented any evidence of a 13 retaliatory motive, a critical element of his claim. Plaintiff asserts that defendants solicited 14 the Crip-affiliated inmates to harm him “just because I had disgruntled some of their 15 coworkers with [plaintiff’s] 1999 lawsuit.” (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 58; see id. at 40-42.)
16 Although he admits that he cannot recall any date or time when the defendants made any 17 statement around him specifically referencing any of his First Amendment activities, plaintiff
18 maintains that the retaliation “was because of that 1999 lawsuit.” (Id. at 58; see id. at 122.)
19 Plaintiff asserts that defendants “had it in for me . . . [b]ecause I’m a litigator.” (Id. at 120.)
20 Without more, however, plaintiff’s conclusory assertions are insufficient to withstand 21 defendants’ motion for summary judgment on this claim. See Rizzo, 778 F.2d at 532 n.4.
22

01 Specifically, plaintiff has not provided any evidence to show that defendants were 02 even aware of his First Amendment activities. See Pratt, 65 F.3d at 808 (no retaliatory 03 motive where the plaintiff has not provided evidence that defendants were aware of the 04 plaintiff's First Amendment activity). For example, plaintiff has failed to produce any 05 declarations or affidavits to contradict defendants' statements in their declarations that, with 06 the sole exception of plaintiff's request for a cell move in 2004 from inmate Jones, defendants 07 had no knowledge of plaintiff's litigation history or any grievances he filed at HDSP. (See 08 Dkt. 232, Sweeten Decl.; Barron Decl.) Plaintiff does not allege that defendants were 09 retaliating against him as a result of his request for a cell change from Jones. (See Dkts. 195 10 and 234.) Without additional evidence, plaintiff has also not established that because 11 defendants knew about his grievance regarding his cell change from Jones, defendants must 12 have been aware of all the grievances plaintiff filed at HDSP. (See Dkt. 234 at 5.)

13 Furthermore, plaintiff has failed to provide any direct or circumstantial evidence to 14 establish a "but-for" causal nexus, and show that defendants took the retaliatory action against 15 him because of plaintiff's exercise of his First Amendment rights. See Rhodes, 408 F.3d at 16 567-68; Pratt, 65 F.3d at 807. For example, the declarations from Goodman and Jones do not 17 provide any evidence of a retaliatory motive stemming from plaintiff's First Amendment 18 activities. Jones' declaration does not suggest any reason for the defendants' actions. (Dkt.
19 195, Ex. B.) Although Goodman stated that Sweeten asked him to beat up plaintiff because 20 there was a videotape of plaintiff "in the Central Treatment Center (CTC) dancing," without 21 more, this vague statement, which references plaintiff's alleged physical infirmities, cannot 22 reasonably be construed as referencing a lawsuit or grievance brought by the plaintiff against

01 HDSP medical staff years ago. (Dkt. 195, Ex. A.) Finally, plaintiff asserts that Dennis 02 punched him on Sweeten's behalf because Sweeten thought plaintiff was "a pedophile" or 03 "child molestor," not because of plaintiff's speech activities. (See Dkt. 232, Ex. B; Dkt. 233, 04 Ellington Dep. at 91-92.)

05 Accordingly, plaintiff has failed to offer evidence from which a reasonable jury could 06 return a verdict in his favor based upon his claim that defendants retaliated against him for his 07 First Amendment activities at HDSP. See Triton, 68 F.3d at 1221. Specifically, he has not 08 met his burden of demonstrating the existence of material factual disputes for trial. See Pratt, 09 65 F.3d at 809. As a result, I recommend that defendants' motion for summary judgment on 10 this claim be granted.

11 3. Plaintiff's Eighth Amendment Claim that Defendants Disregarded an 12 Excessive Risk to His Health and Safety

13 Plaintiff claims that defendants violated his Eighth Amendment rights by housing him 14 in the same cell as Crip-affiliated inmates, thereby disregarding an excessive risk to his health 15 and safety. (See Dkt. 195 at 4.) Specifically, plaintiff argues that defendants knew that 16 plaintiff was not affiliated with any gang, and was therefore more vulnerable to harm by Crip-17 affiliated cellmates. (See Dkt. 195 at 3-4; Dkt. 234 at 2-3 and Ex. A.) Plaintiff also asserts 18 that defendants falsely identified him as a "Crip" on numerous occasions at HDSP in order to 19 increase the likelihood that plaintiff would be housed with Crips who were likely to harm 20 him, due to HDSP's policy of attempting to house Crip-affiliated inmates together. (See Dkt.
21 195 at 4.) Thus, plaintiff is apparently arguing that housing gang-affiliated inmates in the 22 same cell as non-affiliated inmates inherently presents a substantial risk that the non-affiliated inmate will be assaulted, and that in this case defendants were aware of this risk of harm to

01 plaintiff and deliberately disregarded it. (See Dkt. 232 at 3.)

02 Defendants contend that they are entitled to summary judgment as to this claim 03 because they were never aware that housing plaintiff with Crip-affiliated inmates, including 04 Dennis, presented any risk of harm, and therefore did not deliberately disregard this risk. (See 05 Dkt. 239 at 5; Dkt. 232 at 8.) Specifically, defendants point out that plaintiff's initial housing 06 review form, dated June 5, 2001, identified plaintiff as a Crip-affiliated gang member. (See 07 Dkt. 232, Ex. B.) Based upon this review, Barron asserts that he believed that plaintiff was 08 affiliated with the Crips in 2003 and 2004. (See id.; Barron Decl.) Because Barron was also 09 unaware of any disputes or physical altercations between plaintiff and any Crip-affiliated 10 inmates at HDSP, Barron declares that "I did not have any reason to believe that he would 11 have trouble living with other Crip-affiliated inmates." (Id.) Although Sweeten declares that 12 he did not know if plaintiff was associated with any gang at HDSP, he also denies having any 13 reason to believe plaintiff had trouble living with Crip-affiliated inmates. (See id.; Sweeten 14 Decl.) The defendants point out that, with the single exception of inmate Dennis, plaintiff had 15 shared his cell with numerous Crip-affiliated and non-affiliated inmates without incident, and 16 was admittedly on friendly terms with many Crip-affiliated inmates in his building at HDSP.
17 (See Dkt. 232, DSUF at 3-4; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 71-78, 82-91.)

18 The Eighth Amendment imposes a duty on prison officials to provide humane 19 conditions of confinement, which includes "protect[ing] prisoners from violence at the hands 20 of other prisoners." Farmer, 511 U.S. at 833. Prison officials are not liable for every injury 21 suffered by one prisoner at the hands of another, however. See id. at 834. To establish an 22 Eighth Amendment violation resulting from failure to prevent harm, a prisoner must satisfy

01 the two-part test set forth in Farmer, which contains both an objective and a subjective 02 component.

03 To satisfy the objective component, a plaintiff must show that “he is incarcerated 04 under conditions posing a substantial risk of serious harm.” Id. at 834. The Ninth Circuit has 05 also held that where the claim is based upon the failure of prison officials to protect an inmate 06 from assault, “an inmate must demonstrate that the assault was ‘sufficiently serious’ or that 07 the risk of assault was ‘substantial’” Kimble v. Bunnell, 67 F.3d 307, 1995 WL 564751, 08 *1 (9th Cir. 1995) (unpublished) (quoting Farmer, 511 U.S. at 834).

09 To satisfy the subjective component, a plaintiff must show that prison officials acted 10 with “a sufficiently culpable state of mind,” which in prison-condition cases is “one of 11 ‘deliberate indifference’ to inmate health or safety.” Farmer, 511 U.S. at 834. In other 12 words, “a prison official cannot be found liable under the Eighth Amendment for denying an 13 inmate humane conditions of confinement unless the official knows of and disregards an 14 excessive risk to inmate health or safety; the official must both be aware of facts from which 15 the inference could be drawn that a substantial risk of serious harm exists, and he must also 16 draw the inference.” Id. at 837. Although the Ninth Circuit has acknowledged that “neither 17 Farmer nor subsequent authorities have fleshed out at what point a risk of inmate assault 18 becomes sufficiently substantial for Eighth Amendment purposes,” in this context the Ninth 19 Circuit has asserted that a prison official would violate the Eighth Amendment if he knew that 20 an inmate was acting out dangerously with cellmates or otherwise posed a threat, but housed 21 another inmate in the same cell anyway. Estate of Ford v. Ramirez-Palmer, 301 F.3d 1043, 22 1050-51 (9th Cir. 2002). Moreover, the Ninth Circuit has stated that a plaintiff may “rely on 01 circumstantial evidence that the risk of assault was ‘obvious.’” Kimble, 67 F.3d 307, 1995 02 WL 564751, *1 (citing Farmer, 511 U.S. at 842-43).

03 Even assuming that plaintiff was not a member of any gang at HDSP in 2003 and 04 2004, plaintiff has not satisfied the objective component of the two-part test.⁸ Specifically, 05 plaintiff has failed to provide any evidence or cite any authority (and the court is aware of 06 none) establishing that housing a non-affiliated inmate in the same cell as a gang-affiliated 07 inmate will inherently present “a substantial risk” that the non-affiliated inmate will be 08 physically assaulted or harmed. See Farmer, 511 U.S. at 833-35. Plaintiff has also failed to 09 offer any evidence that any of the specific Crip-affiliated inmates he shared a cell with at 10 HDSP, including Dennis, acted out dangerously with cellmates in the past, or otherwise 11 behaved in a manner indicating that housing them in the same cell with plaintiff would pose 12 an “obvious” threat to plaintiff’s safety. See Ramirez-Palmer, 301 F.3d at 1051. Without 13 more, plaintiff’s conclusory assertions regarding the “substantial danger” of housing 14 gang-affiliated and non-affiliated inmates in a cell together do not satisfy the objective 15 component of Farmer. (See Dkt. 232 at 3.)

16 Similarly, as to the subjective component, plaintiff has failed to provide any evidence 17 to contradict defendants’ statements in their declarations that they were not aware that 18

19 ⁸ As mentioned above, plaintiff has provided evidence that HDSP granted his administrative 20 appeal and “identified [plaintiff] as a Black non-affiliate and not a Crip” on December 6, 2005. (See 21 Dkt. 234, Ex. A.) The Kern Valley State Prison also identified plaintiff as a non-affiliated inmate as 22 recently as 2009. (See Dkt. 234, Ex. A.) In addition, plaintiff provides a March 16, 2010, declaration from an inmate expressing his personal belief that plaintiff is not affiliated with any gang, and observing that plaintiff does not have any tattoos suggesting prior gang membership. (See Dkt. 234 at 2; id., Ex. A; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 52.) Although plaintiff’s evidence does not prove that he was not affiliated with the Crips in the past, the Court notes that it helps support an inference that plaintiff was no longer affiliated with the Crips by 2003 or 2004.

housing plaintiff with Crip-affiliated inmates would present a substantial risk of harm, regardless of defendants' beliefs regarding plaintiff's gang affiliation status. (See Dkt. 232, Sweeten Decl; Barron Decl.) It is undisputed that aside from the incident with Dennis, plaintiff did not have any physical altercations or disputes during his incarceration in Facility B, Building 1 at HDSP. (See Dkt. 232, DSUF at 5; Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 91.) As a result, plaintiff has not shown the presence of facts from which the inference could be drawn that housing plaintiff in a cell with Crip-affiliated inmates presented a substantial risk that plaintiff would be assaulted, or that defendants actually drew this inference and disregarded the risk. See Farmer, 511 U.S. at 837.

Accordingly, plaintiff is unable to meet his burden of demonstrating the existence of material factual disputes for trial. The Court therefore recommends that defendants' motion for summary judgment on plaintiff's Eighth Amendment claim be granted.

4. Plaintiff's Eighth Amendment Claim that Defendants Solicited Inmates, Including Dennis, to Physically Harm Him

Plaintiff asserts that "Defendant's (sic) Sweeten and Barron . . . solicited inmate's (sic) to Beat, steal from, defile and generally harm Plaintiff" at HDSP in 2003 and 2004, and that "inmate-Dennis did in fact assault plaintiff, and the assault was under request of Custodial officer Sweeten. . . ." (Dkt. 195 at 3-4.) Even if the Court construes this statement as a claim that defendants' conduct constituted harassment which violated plaintiff's right to be free from cruel and unusual punishment under the Eighth Amendment, plaintiff has not provided any evidence showing a connection between defendants and the incident during which Dennis allegedly assaulted plaintiff on August 9, 2003, as required under § 1983.

01 Inmates have an Eighth Amendment right to be free from “calculated harassment 02 unrelated to prison needs.” Hudson v. Palmer, 468 U.S. 517, 530 (1984). The U.S. Supreme 03 Court has recently reiterated that the Eighth Amendment should be reserved for serious 04 incidents causing “unnecessary and wanton infliction of pain,” which “are those that are 05 ‘totally without penological justification.’” Hope v. Pelzer, 536 U.S. 730, 736-37 (2002)
06 (citing Rhodes v. Chapman, 452 U.S. 337, 346 (1981)). As discussed above, in making this 07 determination in the context of prison conditions, we must ascertain whether the officials 08 involved acted with “deliberate indifference” to the inmates’ health or safety, which can be 09 inferred from the fact that the risk of harm in a given situation is obvious. See Farmer v.
10 Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 842 (1994). See also Hudson v. McMillian, 503 U.S. 1, 8 (1992).

11 In addition, § 1983 also plainly requires the plaintiff to demonstrate an actual 12 connection or link between the actions of defendants and the deprivation alleged to have been 13 suffered by plaintiff. See Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658 (1978); 14 Rizzo v. Goode, 423 U.S. 362 (1976). A person can deprive another of a constitutional right, 15 within the meaning of § 1983, “ ‘not only by some kind of direct personal participation in the 16 deprivation, but also by setting in motion a series of acts by others which the actor knows or 17 reasonably should know would cause others to inflict the constitutional injury.’ ” Hunter, 18 500 F.3d at 988 (quoting Johnson, 588 F.2d at 743-44).

19 If plaintiff had provided evidence that defendants actually solicited Dennis to 20 physically harm plaintiff, or that Dennis purposefully assaulted plaintiff at defendants’ behest 21 in August 2003, this Court finds that this “punitive treatment” would almost certainly amount 22 “to gratuitous infliction of ‘wanton and unnecessary’ pain that [U.S. Supreme Court]

01 precedent clearly prohibits.” Pelzer, 536 U.S. at 738. Indeed, such conduct by defendants 02 would be “totally without penological justification.” Id. Moreover, by soliciting Dennis to 03 carry out this constitutional violation on their behalf, defendants would have set in motion a 04 series of acts which they knew, or reasonably should have known, would result in Dennis 05 inflicting the constitutional injury on plaintiff. See Hunter, 500 F.3d at 988. That is not our 06 case, however.

07 Here, plaintiff has failed to provide any evidence showing a causal connection 08 between defendants and the incident in which Dennis allegedly assaulted Plaintiff.
09 Specifically, plaintiff provides no evidence (such as a declaration from Dennis, or any other 10 inmate from HDSP) to support his conclusory assertions that his documented physical 11 altercation with Dennis in August 2003 was actually an “assault” on him by Dennis, or that 12 Dennis assaulted him because “Mr. Dennis had actually succumbed” to defendants’ requests 13 that Dennis harm plaintiff. (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 92.) Plaintiff admits that there were 14 no other witnesses to the alleged “assault,” which HDSP deemed an incident of “mutual 15 combat with no serious injury where the aggressor cannot be determined.” (Id. at 93; Dkt.
16 195, Ex. C.) In addition, plaintiff admits that although Dennis “may have [written a 17 declaration] for the officers . . . He didn’t write one for me.”⁹ (Dkt. 233, Ellington Dep. at 18 92.) Finally, although the declarations from Jones and Goodman, if true, assert that 19 defendants solicited each of them to harm plaintiff, it is undisputed that neither inmate ever 20 harmed or stole from him. (Id. at 84-90.)

21
22

⁹ The record before this Court does not contain a declaration from Dennis submitted by either party.

01 Without more, plaintiff has not met his burden of setting forth specific facts in support 02 of his claim that defendants solicited gang-affiliated inmates at HDSP, including Dennis, to 03 harm plaintiff, thereby “setting in motion a series of acts by others” which defendants knew or 04 reasonably should have known would cause others to harm plaintiff. See Hunter, 500 F.3d at 05 988. Because plaintiff has proffered only bare allegations in support of his Eighth 06 Amendment claim that he has suffered actionable harm as a result of defendants’ conduct, this 07 issue need not be tried. See Villiarimo, 281 F.3d at 1061 (“[T]his court has refused to find a 08 ‘genuine issue’ where the only evidence presented is ‘uncorroborated and self-serving’ 09 testimony. . . .”) I therefore recommend the Court grant defendants’ motion for summary 10 judgment on this claim.

11 4. Defense of Qualified Immunity

12 Defendants argue that they are entitled to qualified immunity in this § 1983 action 13 because “they are not liable for any constitutional violations.” (Dkt. 232 at 11.) Specifically, 14 defendants claim they did not retaliate against plaintiff, and they are not liable for failing to 15 protect plaintiff from a substantial risk of harm by housing him in the same cell as Crip-16 affiliated inmates at HDSP. (See id.) In the alternative, defendants argue that “[e]ven if this 17 court found that Sweeten and Barron violated Ellington’s constitutional rights, [defendants] 18 are still entitled to qualified immunity because their actions did not violate any clearly 19 established law.” (Id.)

20 The defense of qualified immunity protects “government officials . . . from liability for 21 civil damages insofar as their conduct does not violate clearly established statutory or 22 constitutional rights of which a reasonable person would have known.” Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 01 457 U.S. 800, 818 (1982). A qualified immunity analysis consists of two prongs: (1) whether, 02 “[t]aken in the light most favorable to the party asserting the injury . . . the facts alleged show 03 the [defendants’] conduct violated a constitutional right”; and (2) whether that right was 04 clearly established. Saucier v. Katz, 533 U.S. 194, 201 (2001), modified by Pearson v.

05 Callahan, --- U.S. ----, 129 S.Ct. 808, 818 (2009) (holding that addressing the two prongs of 06 the test in this order is often beneficial, but it is not mandatory.) If the allegations do not 07 establish the violation of a constitutional right under the first prong of the test, “there is no 08 necessity for further inquiries concerning qualified immunity.” Saucier, 533 U.S. at 201.

09 As discussed above, plaintiff has failed to show the violation of a federal right by 10 defendants. Under Saucier, it is therefore unnecessary to make further inquiries regarding 11 qualified immunity. See id.

12 IV. CONCLUSION

13 For all of the reasons discussed above, the Court recommends that defendants’ motion 14 to dismiss on IFP grounds (Dkt. 230) be DENIED, and defendants’ motion for summary 15 judgment on the merits (Dkt. 232) be GRANTED. The Court further recommends that this 16 case as a whole be DISMISSED with prejudice.

17 This Report and Recommendation is submitted to the United States District Judge 18 assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Within fourteen (14) 19 days of being served with this Report and Recommendation, any party may file written 20 objections with this Court and serve a copy on all parties. Such a document should be 21 captioned “Objections to Magistrate Judge’s Report and Recommendation.” Either party may 22 then respond to the other party’s objections within fourteen (14) days of being served a copy

01 of such written objections. Failure to file objections within the specified time may waive the 02 right to appeal the District Court's order. See Martinez v. Ylst, 951 F.2d 1153 (9th Cir. 1991).
03 A proposed order accompanies this Report and Recommendation.

04 DATED this 1st day of July, 2010.
